Patricia Lambert has delivered thousands of work sessions, partnering with leaders to build essential leadership capabilities, develop trust within their teams, and increase personal effectiveness. She is one of FranklinCovey's most sought-after consultants. With over 30 years in the industry, she is the subject matter expert for FranklinCovey's flagship leadership solution, The 4 Essential Roles of Leadership™. As a consultant, Patricia is committed to the unique outcomes that each organization is looking to achieve. She brings every participant into the learning and transformation process by engaging them in the application of the content to their own lives. In her time with FranklinCovey, Patricia has spent time in sales, worked directly with the implementation of All Access Pass®, and has contributed to the development of several content areas. As a Managing Consultant, she leads and develops a team of 25 consultants, helping them become world-class. In addition, Patricia has an MA in Leadership and Learning from Royal Roads University in Victoria, British Columbia.
