

Executive Coach and Senior Consultant

Rohan Verma

San Francisco, California

Highlights

Guest lecturer at UC Berkeley and Columbia University

Directly coached professionals at: Meta, Alphabet, Uber, Salesforce, LinkedIn, Microsoft, Snap, Adobe, Deloitte, Dropbox

Lead Executive Coach of the San Francisco Giants

Avid (but not skillful) golfer

Fan of professional motorsports

Rohan spent 15+ years as a senior executive in the tech industry, leading global teams at some of the world's most popular consumer tech products. Rohan was employee number 250 at LinkedIn and rose from a college intern to become a senior leader in the Product organization and held a similar role at Dropbox prior to its IPO.

Rohan has a degree from UC Berkeley, completed a post-grad program at Stanford Graduate School of Business and was one of the top 20 Speech and Debate competitors in the US while in school. He received his coaching certification from CTI and has completed guest lecture work at UC Berkeley and Columbia University.

Rohan specializes in the technology industry but has broad industry experience, including being the lead executive coach for the San Francisco Giants Front Office Executive team. As an immigrant entrepreneur who was born in India and is a dual US/Canadian citizen, he aspires to bring a global perspective to his client work.

Education & Certifications

- B.A. – Political Science – UC Berkeley
- Post Graduate coursework – Stanford – Organizational Behavior with world renowned Professor Bob Sutton
- Co-Active Certified Coach
- Certified in Hogan Assessments

What clients say about Rohan

"Rohan's ability to tie some of the frameworks back to real world examples was great. Seeing them "in action" made it easier to see how they could be implemented and make an impact."