

Managing Consultant

Dan Brunnert

Chicago, Illinois

As one of FranklinCovey's top utilized consultants, Dan is sought after for his engaging and approachable style. He creates an environment where everyone can learn and apply the content of the session to their life and work. Leaders who partner with Dan to work with their teams appreciate his attention to detail, focus on tailoring the session to their business objectives, and his thorough follow-up.

Dan is committed to helping all attendees engage in discussion and depart with ways they can immediately apply what they learned. With 4 years at FranklinCovey and 22 years as a leadership facilitator and consultant, Dan's passion for unleashing the greatness in people and organizations comes through whether he is delivering in-person or live-online.

In addition to his frequent deliveries on the topics of leadership, trust, and personal productivity, Dan is also frequently requested to teach business leaders how to deliver more engaging presentations and communicate more effectively. Dan is certified to facilitate 16 FranklinCovey content areas.

What learners say about Dan...

"Dan was amazing! He created a safe and supportive space that really encouraged participation and collaboration."

"The content of the course was very good, but it would not have been as good without having someone like Dan behind the slides who was very passionate and very present throughout the course. He was excellent."
